JEFF WILLIAMS

August 1, 2005

As a Councillor at Actors' Equity Association, I am also, by extension, a voter in the American Theatre Wing's annual Tony Awards (Broadway's equivalent of the Oscars). In order to fulfill my duties as a Tony voter, I am obligated to see all of the eligible shows that open on Broadway. I receive tickets to these shows from the producers who are obligated by the American Theatre Wing to provide tickets to all Tony Voters (a group that represents all facets of our industry including a large number of producers, general managers and theatrical presenters) in order for their shows to be deemed eligible under Tony Award rules.

During the 2004 calendar year, I received tickets and accompanying promotional materials to 35 shows. As these tickets have no face value printed on them, I find that a reasonable estimate of their value is not determinable.
